fDi Intelligence ranks Kraków among top 10 Polish Cities of the Future

2021-03-22

Kraków came second in four categories, and fifth in terms of “cost effectiveness” in the fDi Intelligence 2019/2020 ranking of the best Polish cities prepared by experts from this industry magazine owned by the Financial Times - a prestigious British newspaper of international renown.

This means that thanks to its high standard of living and top urban infrastructure the capital of Małopolska is able to compete with other cities not by means of low prices but simply through quality alone. As a consequence, it is currently the most attractive location in Europe for the shared services sector.

fDi Intelligence focuses on identifying European cities that offer the best conditions for development, in particular for start-ups and technological and innovative investments.
