The coat of arms of the Royal Capital City of Kraków depicts a red brick wall on a blue field with three towers crowned with crenellation with three battlements each, black embrasures and windows, the middle of which is higher and broader. The wall features a gate with open golden doors with lily-shaped fittings and raised golden harrow. The gate's arch bears a crowned White Eagle with a gold beak and claws. The coat of arms shield has the Renaissance shape traditional for Kraków topped with a crown with lily-shaped fleurons closed with an arch with a ball and a cross at the top.
